

Workplace Health & Safety

The catastrophic results of failure to effectively manage workplace health & safety are a regular news feature

No manager willingly risks the life, health & safety of staff; but many have to face the harrowing experience and expensive consequences of a lack of foresight, planning or management of risks. Substantial fines are levied for failure to manage serious risk; and jail for responsible managers can be the consequence of a serious accident.

Using *AS/NZS 4801, OHSAS 18001, or SafetyMAP** [containing a well recognised set of criteria] you can:

- identify safety issues which must be managed through a system
- audit procedures and practices, at management and operational levels

P-E Handley-Walker can help you to manage risk by:

- Conducting a review of the current system, practices and environment in which people work
- Guiding staff in the development of a practical, documented system, based on AS/NSZ 4801, OHSAS 18001 or SafetyMAP

The management of occupational health and safety comprises risk identification and the adequate control of practices, situations and environments. It is not sufficient for staff to be safety conscious - there must also be a system supporting them which provides facilities, equipment and practices which are conducive to a safer working environment.

If you have an established system;

P-E Handley Walker also offers training (suitable for new staff, or staff with new roles) in:

- documenting and implementing systems
- understanding AS/NSZ 4801/OHSAS 18001 /SafetyMAP
- internal auditing skills

Training is also available in;

- understanding the WHS (or OHS) Act & Regulations
- Safety Data Sheets, GHS Classification
- Hazardous Chemicals, Hazardous Substances, Dangerous Goods
- Poison Standard (SUSMP)
- Duty of Care
- Risk Management
